Rockin' For Bob
charity concert,
Mexborough
Majestic Suite.

Review by Steve Lally (Rock of The North)

THE concert's title is all about a rock fan called Bob Lees who died 13 years ago this month.

Bob adored animals as much as rock music and since his untimely death at the age of 39, his friend, Mexborough photographer Duncan Mangham, has organised Rockin' For Bob concerts in his honour.

All the artists give their services free and the proceeds go to animal sanctuaries.

Veterans of several RFB concerts, Red Herring opened the proceedings with their own original material. The sound coming from power trio Iain Hearfield, Howard Evans and Dave Samuel, was unbelievable. The songs were very intelligent but highly listenable mini-epics culminating in the tremendous tribute, Rockin' for Bob.
